Farm Board Forms Co-operative Live-Stock Market Assn.

CHICAGO (UP)—Another farmers' co-operative commodity marketing organization of the federal farm board has been formed here. The organization, the fourth of its kind, will be known as the National Livestock Marketing association and is capitalized at $1,000,000.

Representatives of 17 co-operative livestock agencies attended the meeting with Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board at which the new organization was formed.

Legge said he believed the organization will give livestock raisers ample opportunity to develop a unified marketing organization.

Two livestock agencies withdrew from the meeting, declining to join the new group. They are the Farmers' union and the Central Livestock Producers' association.

Senate Refuses Consider Report On Tariff Bill

WASHINGTON (UP)—The senate Wednesday refused to consider the conference report on the tariff and sent the bill back to conference for further negotiations on the major controversial issues in which the two houses are in disagreement—chiefly the export debenture and flexible tariff provisions.

Democrats objected to the proposal of Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee to adopt the partial agreement of the conferees, and insisted on waiting until an agreement was reached on these two items.

Differ in Meaning

The expressions "fatally wounded" and "mortally wounded" are commonly used to express the same thing, but mortally is regarded by some as meaning suffering death at the time of, or soon after, the wounding, while fatally wounded conveys the idea that death followed after a considerable lapse of time.

Relative Strengths

If the strength of a horse is put at 100, then an ox would be rated at 60, a mule at 50, and an average man at 20.

1.75 INCHES OF RAIN FALLS HERE

30 cars were "drowned" in the Tuesday deluge and had to be towed in. Several sections of the city reported that the storm water sewers were unable to carry away the water until after it had overflowed the curbs and sidewalks.

The only serious accident reported during the storm occurred on West Lincoln way late Tuesday afternoon when Polly Perkins, of Jefferson, attempted to jump across a stream of water at the curb into a closed car. She struck her head against the top of the doorway of the car, inflicting scalp injuries that necessitated 22 stitches to close. Miss Perkins is employed at a West Ames cafe.

DOWNHEARTED? NO!

America's 1925 Beauty Queen, Back at Typewriter Now, Knows Hollowness of Fame

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—Five years have taught Fay Lanphier, hailed in 1925 as "the most beautiful girl in the United States," the hollowness of fame.

Back in Hollywood now—a stenographer in the same studio where she made her debut as a movie actress—Fay is far from being broken-hearted. In fact, she's really glad.

"Fame can't bring happiness because it is too empty," she said. "While you are on the pedestal nothing is too good for you. But the moment you step off, or get shoved off, everyone forgets you."

After she was crowned "Miss America" in the Atlantic City beauty pageant of 1925 she signed to play the title role in "The American Venus."

That was her first—and last—picture. Somehow, as a movie actress, she just didn't "click." Gradually the public forgot her. Eventually she drifted back to Oakland, her home town.

"I came back to Hollywood because I couldn't work as a stenographer in Oakland again," she said. "Friends would consider me a failure. Hollywood has already forgotten me and I am practically unknown. There are no embarrassing questions to answer."

This girl who has tasted both success and defeat smiled. And there wasn't the faintest trace of bitterness in her smile, either.

"You know," she said, philosophically, "I don't feel the least bit sorry. In fact, I am glad that my film career ended as soon as it did—with one picture. Had I gone on for even a year and enjoyed fair success it probably would have been very difficult for me to get back to earth. As it is, I am happy and contented now and can look back over the past five years and feel thankful because—"

"Because of what?" I asked.

"Because," she smiled, "they have given me a lot of experience and taught me a lot about life."

YOUTH IS HELD FOR CAR THEFTS

Is Arrested in M'town Tuesday Night

Melvin Henderson, 16, Fort Dodge is in the Ames municipal jail here charged with grand larceny as a result of stealing five automobiles, one of them a Ford coach belonging to Edwin E. Tuttle, 101 Hyland avenue, sophomore student at Iowa State college.

About 3 o'clock Tuesday evening, W. H. Jameson, local business man came out of the theater just in time to save his car. Henderson was driving away and Jameson jumped on the runing board. Henderson ran down an alley and escaped and was picked up Tuttle's car from where it was parked in the rear of Tuttle's house.

Henderson told police here that he started his activities in Fort Dodge last Monday when he stole a car and drove it to Des Moines. He abandoned that car in Des Moines and stole a second car which he drove to Newton. At Newton he abandoned car No. 2 and stole a third car which he drove to Ames and abandoned here.

After attempting to steal Jameson's car and then getting Tuttle's car, Henderson drove to Marshalltown where police arrested him on suspicion. Marshalltown authorities called Ames police and Ames police phoned Tuttle at his home here. Tuttle said he had not missed his car but after checking up he reported that it was gone.

Chief W. J. Cole and Officer Behling returned Henderson to Ames Wednesday morning where he is awaiting trial in the juvenile court. Judge Lake is awaiting arrival of the boy's father before passing sentence.

Ames police believe that the boy was in a similar scrape about a year ago. The Newton car abandoned here was recovered and police brought Tuttle's car back with them Wednesday morning. The owner of the Newton car has not been located.

SCORES INJURED, HOMES LEVELED

sons who lived on the edge of the storm's path and escaped injury.

The cyclonic disturbance extended northward into Oklahoma where Oklahoma City was swept by a gale which destroyed about 30 homes in its old residential suburbs on the south. By a freak of fate residents there escaped death or severe injury.

Sattered outlying Oklahoma sections also suffered, but the cyclonic toll for that state remained at only three dead and $500,000 property loss.

More than 40 injured were taken from Frost in cars to the county hospital at Corsicana.

Every business building in that town was wrecked. The depot was reduced to a pile of debris and box cars were picked up and crushed by the force of the gale.

A temporary morgue had been constructed amidst the ruins, and the dead lay side by side.

Abilene, Tex., was struck by a gale that measured 100 miles an hour in velocity. A blinding sandstorm and spurts of violent rain accompanied the wind, causing damage estimated at thousands of dollars.

Trees, glass windows and growing crops in the vicinity of Childress and Kirkland, Tex., suffered the brunt of the damage in those areas when a hailstorm followed heavy rains. Ranger, Tex., was thrown in darkness by an electrical storm and when it had passed, several houses were unroofed and many head of livestock killed.

Austin suffered heavy damage when downtown basements were flooded. Many houses were unroofed and some of the 100-foot towers of the city's lighting system was torn down by the wind. The seed and hull house of the Farmers' and Gimners' Cottonseed Oil company was demolished. Joe Adair, superintendent of the company and Roscoe Bunton and Henry Williams, employes, were injured.

Fort Worth experienced its most violent wind in 25 years. Pedestrians were thrown against buildings in the downtown streets.

Pupils in the schools at Bowie, Tex., were removed to the basements when a terrific windstorm struck the town. Tile was blown from the roof of the high school and windows smashed at the Ward school. Oil derricks suffered heavily in this vicinity.

Mother of 12 Slays 7, Fails In Suicide Try

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—The bodies of seven of Mrs. Ethel Yelden's 12 children lay side by side in a morgue Wednesday, clad in the night clothes in which their mother dressed them after she killed them, one by one, with a rifle.

Mrs. Yelden lay on a hospital cot with a wound in her shoulder. The eighth bullet, intended to bring rest to her weary body after years of ceaseless toil, was the only one that missed its mark.

Supporting her family was even a more difficult job after her second husband was sent to the Ohio penitentiary, Mrs. Yelden found. She did her best by tending a newsstand at night and taking in washing during the day.

Boston Has Its Hottest Day Wed.

BOSTON (UP)—Wednesday was the hottest May 7 in the half-century of the Boston weather bureau, the temperature standing at 90 degrees at 1 p. m. The previous record high for the date was 89 in 1918.
